A brief introduction of our departments.

Sales

Sales don't sell because our product sells itself. And we haven't even jammed AI into it yet (we're working on it). So instead, sales fly around the world, from Dubai to New York, occasionally bringing us a new client as a souvenir.

Marketing

Since there's nothing to sell, marketing creatures have room to be creative and express themselves. That's why they prepare materials like this eye-catching love letter.

Testing

Have you ever managed to catch a tester at work? Neither have we, but the PlayStation in the conference room is always occupied.

Development

Devs have it easy these days. ChatGPT handles most of their tasks, so they only have to pretend to think very hard.

Operations

They make us play sports, learn Spanish, plan events like this, and feed us when we run into them in the kitchen. In other words, they take very good care of us.

Support

Our systems run like clockwork, so our customers are mainly interested in yesterday's football results, vegan recipes, or recent book releases worth reading.

Infrastructure

This specialist job is all about switching on, switching off, switching on, switching off, switching on, and switching off even more switches. Fortunately, you can always see the results.

HR

We have outstanding human resources. Please stop by our booth and see for yourself. •• And if you're an introvert, check out our website → www.icewarp.com/career.
